HANGING THE MAYOR OF BODMIN. -In the reign of Edward the Sixth there was an insurrection in Cornwall on account of the alteration of the religion, and the country was placed under martial law, which in those times consisted simply of a provost marshal going about and hanging up whomsoever he pleased. Of the wanton manner in which Sir William Kingston, the provost marshal on this occasion, executed his commission the following memorable in stances are recorded : One Boyer, Mayor of Bodmin, had been among the rebels, not willingly, but by compulsion. Kingston, without inquiring into the orroumstances, sent him no tice that on a certain day he would come and dine with him.

The Mayor made accordingly great preparations for receiving the marshal, who failed not to come at the time appointed. A little before dinner the marshal took the Mayor aside and whispered him in his ear. "That an execution must that day take place in the town, and that a gallows would require to be set up against the time the dioner should be done.

The Mayor promised that one should be ready without fail, and gave orders to that effect to his officers. Meanwhile a sumpiuous dinner was served up, to which they sat down in the greatest good bumor imaginable. The Mayor spared no effort to please his guest, who seemed on his part as if he had never been more delighted.

When the entertainment was over the mar shal, taking the Mayor by the hand, requested him to lead him to the place where the gallows was. They accordingly walked forth hand to hand, and on reaching the spot the marshal asked Boyer if he thought the gallows were strong enough. "On, yes." answered the May or, "doubtless it is." "Well, then," said the marshal, coodly, "get you up speedily, for it is provided for you." "Nay," rejoined the May or. "you mean not as you speak." "I faith, said the marshal, "there is no other remedy; you have been a busy rebel, so get up instant "And so," add the chroniclers, imi tating in their style the brevity of the atrocicus deed they record, "without respite or de fense was the poor Mayor of Bodmin hanged.'

ICE CREAM.

My Ice Cream Manufactory, one of the largest in Virginia, still continues to supply private customers, Sunday schools, excursions, picnics, fairs, festivels and associations, as well as the trade, with that SUPERIOR CREAM that has made a name in this community, and is snown everywhere as BRENGLE'S ICE CREAM. I could easily reduce its price by lowering its quality, but good cream, of fresh, pure, wholesome ingredients, cannot be urnished at a less price than I s-rve it. Of course, I could "grade my cream by the price," but my cream would lose the good name that years of fair dealing have won for it. I ask that persons abroad ordering "Brengle's Cream" from third parties will as sure themselves that the cream sent is certainly from my establishment I warrant my cream, and do not wish that inferior cream, sent out as mine, may injure its reputation. It is my sim to furnish the BEST CREAM IN AMERICA, and my customers are satisfied that I do so.
